

World's Leading Trade Fair for Water, Sewage, Waste and Raw Materials Management
May 14–18, 2018 | Messe München

IFAT acts as an information hub for municipalities, private utilities and waste management organizations. It presents solutions for managing water and sewage, as well as strategies for secondary raw materials. The topics covered include cutting-edge machinery and innovative equipment designed to for the water industry, generating energy from secondary raw materials and waste, as well as controlling air pollution, and cleaning flue-gases and extracting air.

You can visit their site here: (<https://www.ifat.de/index-2.html>)

What does IFAT offer its visitors?

Trade visitors from municipalities, private utilities and waste management organizations can watch spectacular live, on-site demonstrations and technical presentations of new machines and large systems. Experts will impart practical, knowledgeable information about the opportunities offered by these technological innovations. With international innovations and more than 3,100 exhibitors, you will gain an overview of global solutions and efficient strategies for sustainable environmental technologies.

There is a whole host of convincing reasons why representatives from municipalities, private utilities and waste management organizations should visit IFAT 2018. Here is a selection.

- The waste and recycling challenge: Innovative recycling technologies and solutions
- The digitization challenge: Opportunities for sustainable networking and automation
- The challenge of an efficient, high-performing fleet of vehicles: Multifunctional street-cleaning, highway maintenance and winter road services machines
- The challenge of supplying drinking water: Solutions for efficient water management
